

Not for Public

EJED and the Accademia Italiana di Conservativa

L'Accademia Italiana di Conservativa (AIC) is a scientific dental association that was founded in 1986. This special academy has only active members and follows very strict rules for accepting new members. The main scope is to establish and promote restorative dentistry at the highest level. The annual meeting of the AIC is held in Riva de Garda, Italy and attracts 800 to 1000 dentists and lab technicians every year. The AIC has 80 active members representing both private practice and universities—many of them are also members of the European Academy of Esthetic Dentistry.

We are very proud to dedicate an entire issue to this prestigious Italian group. The quality of all articles reflects not only the standards of the AIC but also represents the level the European Journal of Esthetic Dentistry endeavors to achieve. It is clinical dentistry at its best to motivate all of us.

Enjoy reading!

Sincerely,
Franco Brenna and
Alessandro Devigus